Old Behrman was a painter who lived on the ground floor beneath them. He was past sixty and had a Michelangelo's beard curling down from the head of a Satyr along with the body of an imp. Behrman was a failure in art. Forty years he had wielded the brush without getting near enough to touch the hem of his Mistress's robe. He had been always about to paint masterpiece, but had never yet begun it. For several years he had painted nothing except now and then a daub in the line of commerce or advertising. He earned a little by serving as a model to those young artists in the colony who could not pay the price of professional. He drank gin to excess and still talked of his coming masterpiece. For the rest, he was a fierce little old man who scoffed terribly at softness in anyone, and who regarded himself as especial mastiff-in-waiting to project the two young artists in the studio above.

Questions :

7. Who was Behrman ?
8. How did Behrman earn his livelihood ?
9. What was Behrman's wish ?
10. Was he a successful artist ?
11. Where did Behrman live ?

III. A) 23. Write the summary of the following passage in about 100 words : 5

A proper consideration of the value of time will inspire habits of punctuality. "Punctuality, said Louis XIV, is the politeness of kings," it is also the duty of gentlemen and the necessity of men of business. Nothing begets confidence in a man sooner than the practice of this virtue and nothing shakes confidence sooner than the want of it. He who holds to his appointment and does not keep you waiting for him shows that he has regard for your time as well as for his own. Thus punctuality is one of the modes by which we testify our personal respect for those whom we are called upon to meet in the business of life. It is also conscientious in a measure for an appointment is a contract, expressed or implied and he who does not keep it, breaks faith as well as dishonestly loses character. We naturally come to the conclusion that the person who is careless about time will be careless about business and he isn't the one to be trusted with the transaction of matters of importance.
